

Counter It

Why do you still believe in me?

After the sadness and pain

Why do you still go through?

There is too much pain for you now

But today will be my day

It is something new

I will counter you

For the smiles at the end of the rainbow

And the beautiful filters

I will get through the tremendous storms

No matter the questions

The sarcasm and criticism

I will counter you

I will finally see the clear blue sea

And fly high through the white clouds

After the sadness and pain

I will counter you

I will write, breath, smile, and live again

I will break through you

Even when you fall down again?

Do you have the strength to be broken again?

I will still counter you

Will break through you

Spread my wings and fly higher than Icarus

To counter you and win

And accept more challenges

The voice in me is getting louder

I will counter you

And WIN

