

The Connecticut Fair Housing Center
Presents

SHOW ME A HERO:

A VIRTUAL VIEWING AND PANEL DISCUSSION

An event in celebration of Fair Housing Month

Join us for a viewing of Episode 5 of 'Show Me A Hero' followed by a panel discussion that seeks to answer the question: "How does NIMBY-ism and the negative perception of people in public housing contribute to barriers we are seeing in fair housing?"

April 25th | 4pm to 6pm

Register for free at: <https://bit.ly/CFHC-Show-Me-A-Hero>

Meet Our Panelists

Our diverse and knowledgeable panelists exude a passion for their work and will provide varying levels of expertise during our discussion.

Lisa Belkin

Journalist and Author

Lisa Belkin is the Chief National Correspondent for Yahoo News, covering domestic social issues., and the author of several books, including Show Me A Hero, on which the critically acclaimed HBO miniseries is based.

Dione Dwyer

President of Resident Council - PT Partners

Dione is a powerful advocate and engages with organizations to ensure residents of low-income public housing have a place at tables of power and to ensure their voice is a part of decision making.

Anika Singh Lemar

Clinical Professor at Yale Law School

Anika is a Clinical Professor at Yale Law School where she teaches the Community and Economic Development clinic (CED). CED's clients include affordable housing developers, small businesses, community development financial institutions, farms and farmer's markets, fair housing advocates, cooperatives, and neighborhood associations.

Maribel Betances

Resident Leader - PT Partners

Maribel moved to Bridgeport, CT in December of 2017 where she initially resided at the Charles Green's Home. Two years later she began volunteering with PT partners at PT Barnum where she became one of the resident Leader at Green Homes.

Get your tickets now at:

<https://bit.ly/CFHC-Show-Me-A-Hero>